In the village of Utango there lived a very poor man called Siaka. Even though he was poor, Siaka had a wife and children. He had one wife, three daughters and one son. The only thing tha Siaka owned was one cow which was given to him by his father. Everyday, he could wake up every early to go and work in flower farms that were near the village of Utango. The money that he was being paid at the flower farms was not even enough to buy enough meals for his family.

Two of Siaka's daughter and the son were in school. Most of the time they were sent home for school fees. While at home, Siaka could sent them to sell groundnuts in the nearby shopping centre so as to boost family income. Everywhere Siaka's family members passed, they identified with poverty because the clothes they were wearing were torn. Their health was not good for they could go for two or three days without food. Sometimes when there was any of them who was sick, the family could not raise the money for medication.

One day, Siaka left his home very early in the morning to go to the flower farms. As he was walking along the road, he saw a bag that was placed in one of the flower farms. COMPREHENSION 2.

Read the passage below and then answer the question that follows.

At last the day came. However, there was still work to be done before the parents arrived, so we reported to school earlier than usual. Chairs and the tables had to be arranged under some shady trees and lunch had to be prepared for the visitors. They were going to have a feast. Migaya and Warida, both in STD seven, arrived pulling a ram which their father had given to the school. Later it was slaughtered and cooked. Soon after that, a matatu drove slowly through the school gate and stopped in front of the office. One of our teachers jumped out. He called a few boys to come and unload seven crates of soda. They were packed in the office and then the vehicle drove off. There was going to be a big celebration.

By ten o'clock everyone was seated. The headteacher stood up and welcomed the parents. After that, she and the other teachers took them round the school.

Read the following passage carefully and answer questions 51-60

Long ago, the eagle and hyena good friends and lived together in the forest in the forest. The hyena liked the eagle because he could fly a long way to look for food and always shared the food and always shared the food and always shared the food he brought back. The hyena was lazy and did very little for himself.

One year, however, it did not rain for many months. Soon there was little food for the animals the eagle found it difficult to feed families so he asked the hyena to help him.

The two animals walked for a long time through the forest but they could not find anything to eat. Then the hyena noticed a large beehive hanging from a branch high on a tree. "My friend, fly up to that hive, "he said." There must be a lot of honey in it. We can eat some now and take the rest home. "

The eagle flew up where he found a few honey combs. He asked the hyena to catch them as he dropped them and put them in a bag. The hyena opened his mouth wide and swallowed all the honey combs. When the eagle flew down he was surprised that there was no honey in the bag "What have you done to the honey ?" he asked.

The hyena had eaten so much that he could not speak he only pointed to his stomach. The eagle was very angry as he went back home.

A few months later it still did not rain and there was almost nothing left to rain And there was almost nothing left to eat. One morning the cagle was flying nearby when he saw the hyena gazing up the sky. When he was near the hyena said," Look at all those heaps of fat in the sky. "When the eagle tried to tell him it was not fat hyena said eagle was selfish. They agreed that the eagle should carry the hyena up in the sky to get fat.

A few days later the hyena was ready with all the other animals. He told the other hyenas that he should go first and they should wait to collect the fat putting it into the bags, baskets and tins they had carried.

The hyena held the last feather of the eagle tightly as they flew higher and they got near one cloud the hyena jumped thinking it was fat. Instead he fell faster and faster towards the earth.

When he got the ground he broke all his legs . Up to this day the hyena limps.
